

GAME

Blob Race

This game is written to be played as an all-skate game, but can be adapted to work as a stage or small group game

OVERVIEW

This game is a youth ministry classic for a reason! It's super fun, easy to set up, and requires minimal supplies. Roped together, teams will race around a pre-determined track. The first team to finish the race wins!

WHAT YOU'LL NEED

- Teams of at least 3 students each (There's no limit to the number of teams or the amount of players on each team.)
- Lengths of rope long enough to wrap around each team as they stand as close together as possible.
- Gaffers or masking tape
- Space in your environment or a hallway to create a track.
- Optional: Pool noodles (see below)
- Optional: Create a playlist to accompany the game. (Or you can follow xp3students on Spotify to access playlists created for this series.)

HOW-TO

PREP

- Create your racetrack for the game. You can make it simple with a starting and finish line about 30 feet apart, or you can make it difficult by adding obstacles like tables, chairs, or volunteers whacking players with pool noodles throughout the course.
- Place your rope near the starting line for easy access.

PLAY

1. Select your teams.
2. Ask the players on each team to stand as close together as possible near the starting line. (Each team should be positioned as though they're in a huddle with people in the middle.)

3. Tie a rope around the perimeter of each team at waist level.
4. When the race begins, teams will work together to navigate the track.
5. If a student breaks away from their team or if the rope breaks, the whole team must go back to the starting line to begin the race again.
6. The first team to have all players cross the finish line wins!
